

Workplace Giving

Workplace giving programs offer the opportunity for employees to contribute by having designated amounts deducted from each of their paychecks. Workplace giving is not only easy and efficient, it allows a company and its employees to work together to benefit the community.

When you contribute to a payroll giving campaign, your smaller donations quickly add up to make an even bigger impact in the fight against hunger.

The Houston Food Bank appreciates payroll giving, because it provides us with a steady stream of support even during our leanest season.

For more information about starting a Workplace Giving Campaign at your place of employment, please contact your payroll or human resources department or Shannon Mills at 832-276-2897.

Government Employee Campaigns

Federal, State and city government employees each have their own special campaigns that are donor-directed to non-profit organizations across the world. To make your designation to the Houston Food Bank, please use the appropriate agency number.
